New study on “Transforming your Infrastructure for Digital”

Posted on 8th January 2018

Pierre Audoin Consultants (PAC), part of CXP Group, have published a new comprehensive study in collaboration with Fujitsu investigating the question "How agile and scalable is the infrastructure of European businesses today and how are they adapting to enable digital transformation?".

For many years, European organizations and enterprises have been challenged to adapt their IT infrastructures in line with the evolving needs of the business. This has never been truer than it is today, in a European market that is subject to an uncertain economic future, and exposed to significant digital business transformation.

The study highlights how organizations are adapting their infrastructures to address this digital challenge, enabling their businesses to thrive and prosper in the new digital environment. The report also provides an invaluable guide to the current level of maturity in the European IT infrastructure marketplace.
